

B.S. LEGAL STUDIES - PRE LAW

The Bachelor of Science in Legal Studies with a Pre-Law Concentration requires a minimum of 120 semester hours including Husson University's General Education requirements as well as Legal Studies, Business, and related courses. It is designed to provide students with skills for success in the legal field and specific preparation for the rigors of the law school curriculum. While the American Bar Association does not recommend any particular majors or courses for undergraduate education prior to law school, it does set forth Core Skills and Values for a Pre-Law education. Students in the Legal Studies program earning a Pre-Law Concentration will have completed a curriculum which has the American Bar Association Core Skills and Values as its foundation.

The programmatic outcomes for the B.S. Legal Studies--Pre Law are:

1. Students will understand core practices in legal studies such as interviewing and investigation; law office management; and litigation
2. Students will demonstrate critical thinking and legal writing skills
3. Students will apply legal and ethical principles to decision making.
4. Students will apply legal research methods and tools to formulate legal arguments and reasoning.
5. Students will apply critical thinking to diversity issues that arise in legal studies
6. Students will demonstrate the ability to work with diverse colleagues in team situations.
